

Grand Entrance

(A poem for two voices)

Hello! Here I am!

Aren't you amazed?

My beauty is dazzling

So try not to be dazed.

Greetings, it's me!

Take a moment to stare

At my stylish new gown

And my silky brown hair.

My cheeks are red rosy

With two perfect dimples.

I've no bruises or boils,

Not even one pimple.

I'm brilliant and witty

And strong as an ox.

I pole vault, I'm published,

I knit my own socks.

Taa-dah! I've arrived!

With a large diamond ring.

My breath smells like flowers;

Angels clap when I sing.

I am gorgeous and grand

From my head to my toes,

And...

Hey lady!

Yes, what?

A booger's stuck

in your nose!
